

Sometimes people arrive here over a quiet period and are disappointed no other are cyclists here. More often than not we're a low key place with unpredictable moments of frenetic activity as happens as large cycling groups arrive hungry and thirsty altogether and often unannounced.

It's always really nice to be appreciated for what we are - which is hopefully sustainable as well.

Thank you Richard for taking the time to write

"four years ago I visited your cafe on the c2c with my son. I remember the day well and can honestly say I was amazed. Joe was 13 and is now 17. it was his first ever bike ride. we arrived and you were not at home. we looked in the cycling barn and could not believe such a place could exist, with magazines, drinks and bars and a honesty box. you turned up after a visit to the shops and made us lunch. nothing was too much trouble. It left a lasting impression.

Since that very first ride we have become cycling addicts. we completed Lejog the next year and joined Hull Thursday Road Club. Joe came third in the national 25 mile championships for 16 year old last year, and gained 10 A stars at GCSE. That very first trip inspired a healthy lifestyle in that young boy which you have played a small part in. he loved that cafe and has spent many Sundays looking for that similar experience. none have yet come close, but we will keep looking.. Keep up the good work.
